Welcome to Lofoten Cruise Ports - Magical Islands -

Lofoten is an Arctic island archipelago, and has been a cruise ship destination since 1984, although the German emperor Wilhelm was the first to visit Lofoten as early as 1889 on one of his cruises along the coast of Norway. In this way, the cruise industry is quite new to Lofoten, but at the same time, it has been important for a long time.

The last few years have seen an average of 80 cruise calls each year. There are two main cruise ports: Leknes and Svolvær.

Thanks to the influence of the Gulf Stream the climate is remarkably mild for its Arctic setting. This also gives the landscape its striking variety: wildly beautiful places of marsh and rock, green fields and still lakes, dramatic mountains, and white sand beaches by turquoise seas.

The dramatic landscape also gives a fascinating variety in different types of weather within the same day, giving an extra touch to the visit.

The human influence is seen in the picturesque villages and the fish-drying racks that surround them, as stockfish – dried cod – is still the main export.

Five of the islands are connected by road, and you can cross all five and return in a day with ease. Alternatively, passengers can disembark at one port and rejoin the ship at another.

Various national and international publications have named different places in Lofoten “the most beautiful beach in Norway”, “the most beautiful islands in the world”, and “the most beautiful view in the world”.

In this cruise manual we would like to show all the possibilities there are by choosing Lofoten as a port of call on a cruise, and in each different section you can get thorough information and facts about the different sights, venues and providers.

Welcome to Lofoten , Magical Islands!

ARCTIC GUIDE SERVICE

Arctic Guide Service AS was formerly known as Lofoten Guide Service and Tromsø Guide Service.

The company has branches in Lofoten, Tromsø and North Cape, and mainly deals with guiding, and arranging tours for cruise ships, the Coastal Steamer (Hurtigruten), and tour operators.

This forms the bulk of our activities. Within only a few years we have established ourselves as the leading contractor and guide service in the northern parts of Norway.

We started up as Lofoten Guide Service in 2001. In 2006, we established the daughter company Tromsø Guide Service, localized in Tromsø, and offering the same services as Lofoten Guide Service.

The two companies have worked closely together, and guides from Tromsø can be used in Lofoten and vice versa. After our expansion to North Cape, we are proud to offer our services also here under the new name Arctic Guide Service, a name that shows our strong connection to the arctic region.

This season we will engage around 130 guides, and can offer tours in languages as Norwegian, English, German, French, Italian, Spanish, Dutch, Russian, Japanese, and Finnish.

Our guides have all undergone basic training. This involves attending a guiding course in addition to private study and joining a number of tours as an observer.

Our main office is based in Leknes, in Vestvågøy municipality - In the heart of Lofoten

The Moskenes Island

- the municipality of Moskenes

Area: 118.6 km²
Population: 1.128
Centre of Municipal Administration: Reine
Telephone: +47 76 05 31 00
www.moskenes.kommune.no

The municipality of Moskenes covers the southern part of the Island Moskenesøy, where the landscape has been sculpted by glaciers and other elemental forces that have turned into one of the wildest and most fascinating spots in Norway. The landscape is characterized by sheer mountains and a narrow shoreline, and has some of the oldest rocks in Europe, approximately 3 billion years old. Today, settlement is concentrated on the inner side of the coast where there are good harbor conditions for the fishing fleet, cargo vessels and leisure boats. Services in the municipality are well-developed and include grocery shops, a bank, post office services, kiosks, restaurants, cafes and a petrol station. There are many cultural activities in Moskenes, including a music and culture school, a library, art galleries and numerous societies and organizations.

Moskenes is dependent upon its primary industry, the fisheries and this industry has been, and still is essential for habitation on this island. The fishing villages appear like "pearls on a string" and around every corner one can observe the living history and culture of this fascinating and wild place of the world.

We always recommend our visitors to visit one of the many museums in Moskenes to learn more about the history and culture. In Å you will find the Stockfish Museum and Norwegian Fishing Village Museum. Worth a visit is also the Norwegian Telecom Museum and Lofoten Toy museum.

Distance from Leknes pier
65 km / 70 min.

Distance from Svolvær pier
130 km / 140 min.

Maximum number of pax at one occasion: 120 pax. During one full day: 600 pax. Recommended time to spend at attraction per visit: guiding 20-45 min, individual visit: 1 hour

Welcome to the Norwegian Fishing Village Museum Å in Lofoten.

Step back in time 100 years ago and have a taste of everyday life in the fishing village. Meet the fishermen in their cabin resting after heavy duty on the sea. Learn to repair nets and lines in the boat house. Are you lucky, maybe you will meet Draugen, the ghost of storms. Please don't wake him up! Brave kids and parents are welcome to the "Draugens-cave" where we have prepared activities. Have a spoonful of cod liver-oil in the old factory and find out how the oil was made. Do you know how many other purposes the oil was use for? Visit the Old Shop. Follow the cinnamon smell and be the first to get a fresh roll baked in the old stone oven from 1844. Be with the bakers during their working day. Visit the fisherman's family house. Meet the blacksmith repairing tools and find out what else he can do. Look up in the postbox in the old Post office – maybe there is something waiting for you there? In the Steam ships' expedition office check the route schedule for the next ship arriving to Å – Are you ready for a trip?

Lofoten Tørrfiskmuseum

- The only one of its kind

Stockfish is Norway's oldest product for export. It has for thousands of years had a great deal of importance for Lofoten, also in this day. The Lofoten stock fish museum exhibits the production line from start to finish.

We guide and teach about the stock fish for large groups in 6 languages: Italian, French, German, English, Spanish and Norwegian. The owner and guide of this museum has a thorough knowledge of producing and selling fish in Lofoten and has worked in the trade exporting the stock fish for 20 years.

The guiding through the museum is interesting, but also a unique, memorable and fun experience. For many years we have focused on delivering quality guiding and information and we take pride in answering all the questions that guests may have. Feedback from cruise operators has been very good!

Restaurant Taste of Lofoten at Å

Enjoy the exclusive taste of Lofoten cuisine

When you reach the end of the road in Lofoten, you will find the idyllic place Å - and you haven't really experienced the magic of Lofoten until you've been to this spectacular place.

Here you can walk among "rorbuer" - the traditional red fisherman cabins. Å in Lofoten is in fact one of Norway's most authentic traditional fishing villages. The greatest cod fishery in the world "Lofoten fishery" is what forms the basis of the human settlement in Lofoten, and the old fishing traditions are still maintained right here on Å.

Which place would be better to taste the riches the sea has to offer than in these magnificent surroundings? Your friendly host, Mariann and Stein, takes great pride in offering you local foods, and will be providing you high quality seafood made of premium raw materials.

This gives you the unique opportunity to experience The Taste of Lofoten with the famous maelstrom Moskstraumen as your nearest neighbour, while you can enjoy the majestic view of the characteristics Lofoten mountains.

Right here by the sea, the restaurant Taste of Lofoten gives you all this, and also offer rooms and fisherman cabins. We're looking forward to seeing you.

The Flakstad Church - a proud heritage

Lofoten has a strong cultural heritage through its Christian community, which is reflected in its many churches. The current church in Flakstad was built in 1780 and is built on a site where several churches stood before it. The timber is Russian as a result of the pomor trade, and the building itself is inspired by the Russian churches and their architectural style in the 18th century. Flakstad and its parish is named as early as the middle ages, through the testament of Arvid Ingelsøn which was issued in 1430.

The church is well-used by its parish today and we are proud to show you our living and proud history!

The Glass Hut at Vikten

- more to offer than artists and architectonic statements

Where the North Sea carves its shores into beautiful sculptures is the place where you find the artists of the Tangrand family.

The glass is produced at the Glass Hut. Here you will witness the glassblower at work. A lump of matte material is turned into beautiful, glossy products, with warm sparkles – it's almost magic!

The Glass Hut offers you the benefit of an outstanding view towards the beach and the ocean.

In a harmonious coexistence with the Glass Hut you will find the Pottery Tower. This is where Åse Tangrand juggles with clay and creates beautiful, yet practical tools – almost too nice for the kitchen!

The Pottery Tower leads you up to the facility's coffee shop.

Vikten has more to offer than artists and architectonic statements. Just a step away from the buildings, you can enjoy the unique nature. Take a walk along the beach, or a take village tour – notice how green the grass is, pick flowers, breathe in the sea smell, and observe the sheep on the mountain.

The Vestvågøy Island

Telephone: +47 76 05 60 00

www.vestvagoy.kommune.no

Vestvågøy is one of the larger agricultural areas of the county of Nordland.

The island consists of wide valleys and a blend of sheering mountain peaks as well as rounded mountains making it a ramblers dream. Stamsund and Ballstad are the largest fishing villages on this island and the large fishing fleet contributes to the employment of a significant number of people in the maritime engineering industry. The beaches of the island are marvelous and the far side, or “the outer side” is the most accessible from this island. The outer side of Lofoten is where the roughness of the arctic climate can be experienced, and where the midnight sun can be seen.

The municipality is a center of commerce and service and has a hospital, Nordland college of fisheries, churches, swimming pools, cinema, restaurants and cafes, auto repair shops, specialist shops, pharmacies and many other services and cultural experiences on offer.

Historically the island has been a center of power in Norway tracing back all the way back to the Iron and Viking ages and the largest attraction in Lofoten – the Lofotr Viking Museum is situated on this island. Leknes havn is the largest cruise terminal in Lofoten today. The island hosts several cultural events such as food, theatre and arts festivals.

The municipality has a large cultural and artistic scene hosting around 75% of the region's professional artists. The town of Svolvær is the municipal administration center and is the largest town of the Lofoten regional area. The crag known as “the Svolvær goat” is the town's most characteristic feature, and the town has one of the most important harbors for maritime services in Northern Norway today. The surrounding towns such as Henningsvær and Kabelvåg are large fishing villages and Storvågan is a historical area with roots back to the year 900. In the middle ages, it was the most densely populated area in Northern Norway due to the Lofoten fisheries. The municipality of Vågan has galleries featuring prestigious artists depicting Lofoten's and northern Norway's unique style of life and rich culture.

Full Steam, Henningsvær

- In the realm of the Arctic cod: from the sea to export commodity

See – smell – feel – taste – learn !
The aim of Full Steam is to show visitors how the fishery in Lofoten has worked and how it works today.

Full Steam is located in an active fish processing plant that buys between 1.5 and 2 million kg cod annually. Our facility features most of the fishing gear used on land and in fishing boats from 1850 up to the present day.

Full Steam is designed to convey the history of fisheries in Lofoten through artefacts, lighting and not least the taste of Lofoten. This fascinating story is presented by genuine natives of Lofoten!

Galleri Lofotens hus

- Northern Norway's new national gallery

In Henningsvær, you will be able to visit Galleri Lofotens Hus, also known as Galleri Karl Erik Harr. The gallery has three floors.

The ground floor has one of the largest collections of art from the so-called Golden Age of North Norwegian painting, from the late 18th to the early 19th century. When the European Royal Families visited the gallery, it was featured in Norway's biggest newspaper, VG, as Northern Norway's new national gallery.

On the first floor, you can find an exhibition by one of Norway's best-known contemporary artists, Karl Erik Harr. The second floor has an excellent exhibition of photographs taken during the Lofoten Fishery in the 1920s.

But before you see these wonderful art works, there is a multimedia show put together by photographer Frank A. Jensen. It is a series of beautiful images that shows life in Lofoten throughout the year. There is no commentary, just music and the sounds of Nature.
